

EAEH 2003.
9th May, 2003.
Discovering the Environment.
Programme.

10-00 Horace Herring, Open University,
Childhood experiences as environmental triggers.

10-30 Rob Lambert, University of Nottingham,
'Setting the fox among the lambs': Teaching Environmental History in Britain

11-00 Divya Tolia-Kelly, University College London,
Landscape, Memory and Diaspora.

Break 11-30.

11-45 Nina Morris, Heriot Watt University,
Smelling, hearing, touching, tasting: discovering, understanding and reflecting upon the natural environment through intimate encounter.

12-15 Susanne Dobrovolny, Queen Mary, University of London,
Conservation, endangered species and the role of the London Zoological Society, (provisional title).

12-45 Paul Warde, Cambridge University,
The woodlands of early modern Europe.

Lunch 1-15

2-15 Jan Oosthoek,
The Discovery of the Waddensea in the Netherlands, 1945-1970.

2-45 Lalage Grundy, University of Surrey,
Box Trees, where culture meets ecology.

3-15 Anne Milton-Worsell, University of Surrey.
Preserving the View from Richmond Hill - an early case of environmentalism?

3-45 Break

4-00 Raymond Smith,
Chalk and Water in the Thames Valley.

4-30 Peter Brimblecombe, University of East Anglia,
Implications of the Great Smog of 1952